

A
reflection member having shielding means which is arranged between every two light sources of the plurality of light sources to prevent each light source from receiving light directly from any other light source; and a housing member which houses the light guide body, the plurality of light sources and the reflection member.

---